ONLY I CAN SHOW YOU HOW TO GET EXACTLY WHAT YOU WANT, AND NOT WHAT YOU DESERVE!
Dear Cheryl
DP
DOESN'T SHE KNOW KARMA IS A BOOM-ERANG?
SHE WON'T GET AWAY WITH THIS!

BY SARA ALGASE

Dear Cheryl,
I like this boy and he likes me. But I'm worried because he looks at this girl named Courtney when the teacher is reading a book. What can I do to get him to notice me?
-- Help!, British Columbia, Canada

Dear Help!,
I have three words for you: Eyeliner, eyeliner and eyeliner! Well, actually they're all the same word, but who's counting? You can't expect a guy to notice you if you don't have some eye-definition. So try it. And if that doesn't work, have you considered switching your nail polish? -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm in fourth grade. Do you think I'm too young to be dating?
-- Laurie-Ann, Yellow Knife, Canada

Dear Laurie-Ann,
Dating is such a valuable activity. It helps you learn about yourself and other people while deepening your experience of life. And you get lots of free dinners and cool gifts besides. I say go for it! --Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I'm going into middle school this year and I think I'm a goody-goody like Betty. What should I do to be popular, cute, dress well, and have boys following me around? I want to dress like you and act like you. What should I do? -- Someone Who Wants to be Like Cheryl, Des Moines, IA

Dear Someone Who Wants to be Like Cheryl,
You are a wise person who knows where to go for expert advice on beauty and boys. No sense being like Betty when you can be like me! Make sure you always look ready for a fashion shoot, even if you're just walking your dog. And always wear a generous amount of mascara.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
Almost all my friends have boyfriends and I don't. What should I do? -- Sandra, Poughkeepsie, NY

Dear Sandra,
Though I've never had your problem (I've been dating since nursery school), I do feel for you. It's really not hard to get a boyfriend. You just have to polish your flirting skills. Watch some girls who get all the guys (like me) and see how they do it. Also act interested in their achievements and smile and wink a lot. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I have a boyfriend who doesn't always respect me. He's fine and attractive, but there's another boy in my class who's even cuter. How do I tell my boyfriend that we're over and get this other boy to ask me out?
-- Leslie, Salem, MA

Dear Leslie,
You definitely have the right to dump any boy who doesn't respect you, especially if there's someone cuter you'd like to date! Make up some lame excuse like you need to spend more time on your hair and then flirt with the other guy until he asks you out. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I broke up with my boyfriend five months ago and I still haven't gotten over him. He's really popular with the girls. And the worst part is I have to face him every day at school. How do I get him back?
--Elizabeth, Elmhurst, NY

Dear Elizabeth,
The easiest way to get a guy back is to act like you don't care anymore. Date other guys and act like you're over him. There's something about a girl who doesn't care anymore that makes a guy come crawling back, pleading for another chance.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There's this boy I like a lot and I know he used to like me. So I sent him a few flirty letters. But when he got them he just bragged to the other girls. (We're both very popular.) Have I blown my chance with him? -- Depressed & Confused, Billings, MT

Dear Depressed & Confused,
This guy seems to be taking advantage of your affection to win attention from other girls. That's completely unfair. He should at least be taking you out on dates to get those kind of privileges. Tell him that he won't see another flirty letter from you until he pays for a dinner or two.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There's a boy I like, but he doesn't say anything to me. I want to say something to him, but I can't. I'm one of the most popular girls. All the boys think I'm attractive, but he doesn't. -- Cathy, Ft. Lauderdale, FL

Dear Cathy,
If you can't speak to him you can get his attention in other ways. Wear cute dresses, slink around and smile at him. But if he still ignores you, do you want that failure on your dating record? Date some other cute hunk and make this guy jealous. -- *Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I really like this guy named Ringo. I'm sixteen and he's only ten. I want to ask him out but I'm afraid it will ruin my high school reputation. My rep means everything to me!
-- Mickey, Salem, MA

Dear Mickey,
Dating a younger guy is only acceptable if he's really rich or cute or otherwise has some irresistible quality that will make others envious. So unless he's related to the other Ringo, the famous one, don't waste your time. -- *Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
A boy in my class bought his girlfriend a necklace. I want my boyfriend to buy me a necklace. How do I ask him? -- Tammy, Fort Worth, TX

Dear Tammy,
The secret is not to ask for a necklace. The secret is to drop hints that you want a necklace. Tell your boyfriend how much you love necklaces. Go on and on about how much you would really love a necklace. Then when he finally gets you one, act surprised and tell him how thoughtful it was for him to think of it!

Dear Cheryl,
There's this guy in my school who I really like, but he's sort of going out with one of my best friends. I want him to ask me out, but I'm afraid of hurting my best friend's feelings. -- Belle, Asheboro, NC

Dear Belle,
You're a good friend. Unfortunately that won't get you anywhere in the dating department. If you only go out with boys who aren't dating any of your friends, that severely limits your dating choices. I say, don't let a friend stand in the way of a good date. -- *Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
Boys never notice me. I try my best to stand out but it never works. Could you give me some beauty tips? -- Lonely, Minneapolis, MN

Dear Lonely,
Eyeliner is a necessary tool for any boy-catching look. Make sure you put on just the right amount. Not so much that you look like a raccoon but not so little that no one can see it. Oh, and don't forget to wink those gorgeous eyes at the guy of your dreams. -- *Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I was going out with two boys at once and neither of them knew about it. But I told my friend, Katie. She was so jealous, she went and told them. Now my boyfriends are having second thoughts about me. What should I do? -- Pamela, Glen Rock, NJ

Dear Pamela,
Two guys are definitely better than one, as long as neither finds out! But since these two are onto your scheme, I guess it's time to choose between them. Let the guys fight over you as long as possible. Then pick the one who is cuter and has a bigger wallet. -- *Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
Most of the boys in my class like me. How do I keep them from following me everywhere? -- Desperate, Lima, OH

Dear Desperate,
It's an unfortunate part of being gorgeous that you have guys following you everywhere. But it's one of those things you have to put up with if you want to be in demand. If the crowds get too big, tell them to take a few steps back. After all, even a sought-after girl needs her space.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I like this guy but I don't know if he likes me. The problem is that I'm ten and he's fourteen, plus he has a girlfriend. What should I do?
-- Helpless, Ontario, Canada

Dear Helpless,
Don't guys know how inconvenient it is for them to have girlfriends in the first place! They should just be waiting for us, happily single until we can get our hooks into them. But don't fret. Find out when the "other woman" is in class and then lay on the charm until he figures out who the right girl is for him. You, of course! -- *Cheryl
